Activities 2012

- World Theatre Day Celebration, 3 April, Theatre Institute Bratislava – Studio 12: 6th Theatrical Dionysia on the occasion of the World Theatre Day Celebration. Festive evening connected to the prize giving and honorary doctorates ceremony, awarding personalities of the Slovak theatre life in various activities and fields of performing arts. For the first time the Slovak ITI Centre Prize was awarded to prof. Soňa Šimková, one of the leading persons in the history of Slovak Centre ITI, for her work in national and also international structures of the ITI.
- Project Istropolitana – 22 to 27. June – Bratislava (various venues): Festival Istropolitana Project is absolutely unique among all festivals in Central Europe and provides a special opportunity for young theatre artists to be involved in an international confrontation of their work, opinion and production. It creates space for future theatre professionals to meet with eminent theatre scholars, their audience and their colleagues. Project takes place every second year and provides continuous mutual confrontation between young artists and broad audience. The festival with its competition part is a significant event in the context of Slovak culture and theatre education system in the Middle-European region and is the only one of its kind within Slovakia. The project's target is to hold a creative meeting of the youngest generation of theatre artists from national and international schools and to present various approaches and poetics towards theater staging and interpretation.
