XXXI International Theater Festival "Baltic House" (St.Petersburg) was held from 6 to 20 October. The main program of the theatrical forum included 14 performances from four countries: Italy, the Republic of Belarus, Lithuania and Russia. The new works were presented by leading Russian stage masters: Dmitry Krymov, Iosif Raikhelgauz, Kama Ginkas, Denis Azarov, Andrey Prikotenko and Dmitry Volkostrelov. Also by the new generation of directors who began their career in the second decade of the 21st century: Evgeny Kornyag (Belarus), Roman Muromtsev (Russia) and Dmitry Krestyankin (Russia). A special focus in program was on the "Macbeth" directed by Alessandro Serra (Italy). And two premieres of the famous European director Oskaras Korshunovas (Lithuania) - "Othello" and "Death of Tarelkin".

Also the off-program of the Festival included performances of St. Petersburg non-state theatres, an international scientific-practical conference "Dramaturgy as a time capsule. Contemporary play yesterday and today" and theatrical business brunch "Theatre as a business model".
